

RISE2THRIVE INTERVENTION: ECOLOGY SKILLS TRAINING

Interested in a career working outdoors?
Want to spend more time out in nature?
Want to be more sustainable in life and work?

Our non-accredited course in sustainability and field ecology skills will introduce participants to environmentally conscious work and explore some of the opportunities within it.

If you are interested in working in ecology or other outdoor work, such as horticulture, it would be well worth your while and can give you a taste of working in an industry that often gets overlooked by people believing that they require higher education to access it.

To book a place, arrange a course near you, or find out more, scan the QR code or click here for our referral form or email info@projectwildcic.com

Whether or not you want to go down an environmental path with work, the course gives you an opportunity to see some of our rare wildlife and develop transferable skills to any industry including risk and data management, sustainable practices and project planning. It may inspire you to explore work options that you may not have even considered before!

This course training is for small groups of up to 5 participants per course, and can be delivered on a one day or two day basis.

1 day course:

Delivered 9.00am - 5.00pm, classroom and site based.

2 day course:

Day 1: 4 hour morning or afternoon session, classroom based.

Day 2: 4 hour morning session, site based.

We can deliver this course across North Yorkshire so if you have a small group of participants who would like to attend this course, get in touch and we can arrange to come out and deliver it locally to you.

To book a place, arrange a course near you, or find out more, scan the QR code or click here for our referral form or email info@projectwildcic.com